Presenting La Neva '64

Time is an inevitability in man's life; yet it is not time alone that fashions the path of destiny. Courage, faith, perseverance, fortitude, strength, and the desire for freedom have combined to form what is now the United States of America. Our nation represents the challenge and courage of the colonists of Massachusetts and Plymouth; the fearless leadership exemplified in the Continental Congress; the bitter, relentless struggle for democracy in the Revolutionary War; the pushing, rushing explosion of an expanding nation; the birth of a new era of trade and modernization in the Industrial Revolution; the blood of men who fought in world wars for what they believed to be a cause of humanity; the ideas, innermost thoughts, and artistic culture of great authors, humanitarians, and artists; and the pushing drive of a people working for a powerful, yet peaceful, nation. Much, however, remains to be accomplished, for time and infinity represent new worlds to be conquered.

Man's horizon now stretches from the earth to the stars. With the discoveries of space, time flies by more rapidly than ever before as man strives to master the unknown. Encouraged by successful human orbits, the fabulous Telstar, and dynamic experiments to go to the moon, the United States attempts to conquer space through peaceful co-existence.

It is a whole nation which must conquer a new dimension, and a nation is only as good as its citizens. As our graduates prepare for their tasks in life in this changing world, we hope that they will always see a new, shining horizon before them that is their ultimate goal in life—a horizon that each year will become more accessible and desirable.

President John F. Kennedy

1917-1963

"His tragedy is deep in our hearts, but the task for which he died is at the top of our agenda. A noble servant of peace is gone. But the quest for peace lies before us."

We Dedicate This Annual

The recipient of the La Neva's dedication is honored by the Seniors as being the person to whom they wish to give a great tribute. In their minds this person illustrates the integrity, sportsmanship, perseverance, respect, and friendship that they admire.

This year the Senior class has chosen a teacher respected for his teaching ability and fairness, liked by both the faculty and student body for his friendly manner, and admired for his coaching ability. Besides teaching algebra, he has coached the basketball and baseball teams; he has helped students learn and athletes strive for victory with the best of their ability, thus promoting high ideals in both education and sportsmanship. Through his efforts many students have learned that constant struggling is needed to achieve quality in anything they attempt. These efforts, combined with the example he himself is, have gained him the esteem of the entire student body.

Therefore, in view of his valuable contributions of teaching and sportsmanship to Avenal High School, we are proud to dedicate this yearbook to Mr. Frank Ross.

Space Age Demands Leadership

Man is eternally motivated by the desire to protect the gift of life, prolong it and improve the environmental factors that play upon it. The space age, which is also known as the era of action, has emphasized improvement of environmental conditions to the point that is advancing society at a supersonic rate.

The improvement of society at such a rapid rate has society and particularly the leaders. This rate of advancement depends directly upon the speed at which this society is able to produce capable leaders. As the demands increase, the rewards increase, both materially and emotionally.

May you accept the challenge to develop and perfect those qualities of integrity, responsibility, emotional stability, empathy, enthusiasm and gentility. These qualities combined with an abundance of energy and good sound judgement will enable you to become a leader and make your contribution to the rapid progress of society. This progress cannot and will not continue without competent leadership.

Best wishes to you in the future and may you find afresh each day the force, the inspiration and passion of leadership. This is a demanding task, but remember, problems are opportunities for those strong enough to tackle them as challenges, so regardless of the vocation or profession you select; be the best.

Administration Promotes Smooth Flight

Smooth, successful take-offs and landings in and out of the school years of Avenal High School are attributed to our administration. By its carefully planned program we, the students, derive the utmost benefits from our education. The culmination of this school year again will be the take-off of another graduating class, and without the efforts of our administration, this smooth take-off would not have come into being.

Avenal Faculty for '64 Conforms to the Space Age

Guided missiles are controlled as their name implies, guided by conscientious and intelligent operators. These missiles need their operators to control and guide them before take-off.

And so the faculty of Avenal High School are similar to these operators. Under their careful supervision, co-operation, and informative teaching, we, the students, are guided before our take-off into the world that presents the horizons of responsibilities, careers, and life itself.

Just as the success of the guided missiles depends upon the people who operate them, so does our success depend upon our teachers. For their unfailing work and friendship, we all are thankful!

Space-Age Students Still Prefer Man Over Machinery

Automation is rapidly advancing; yet it cannot take the place of the excellent personnel of AHS. Their unceasing work to better our school causes us to look with pleasure upon the new horizons of education, for we know that our school will remain one of the best.

High school has played a valuable role in the lives of the graduating class of 1964. The education, maturity, and interests they have gained will be valuable in whatever way of life they choose.

Yet these elements are not the whole of the past four years; extra-curricular activities and national events have touched their lives, changing them in more ways than one.

Do you remember, Seniors?...

Your Freshman year of high school...school politics...John F. Kennedy elected President of the United States...your first organized class sponsored project, the Valentine's Dance...South Africa proclaimed a republic...Your Sophomore year, 1961-1962: the work and pleasure of the Halloween Dance...Lieut. Col. John H. Glenn, Jr. is the first American to orbit the earth...your excitement at the arrival of your class rings...the hanging of Adolph Eichmann...Your Junior year, 1962-1963: "Sonny" Liston wins the world's heavyweight boxing championship...Commander W. M. Schirra orbits the earth six times...the weeks of tedious, demanding, yet satisfying practices that preceded the successful production of "Our Town," a play hailed by students and townspeople as the cultural triumph of the year...the Cuban crisis...the first United States relay satellite launched...the patient work of previous months and the frenzied decoration and care of last-minute details that climaxed in the different, alluring prom, known by the title, "Passport to Paradise"...Your Senior year, 1963-1964: the shocking, senseless assassination of President John F. Kennedy...the Winter Olympics...the Senior Silver Dollar Dance, filled with a Justice of the Peace, a bar, and a jail...the hectic rehearsals that led up to "The Mouse That Roared," a hilarious political satire...the fun of ditch day... commencement...the proud, nostalgic day of graduation...

And now, Seniors, the basic beginning of your educated lives--high school--is over. This, indeed, is the END OF THE BEGINNING...

Responsibility was the key action demonstrated by the class of 1965. The weeks of preparation resulted in their extremely humorous and successful comedy, "Torch Bearers" which they will remember forever with a happiness that is tinged with nostalgia. A prom is the highlight of any school year and the enchanting and delightful prom sponsored by this class long will be remembered by both the students and faculty alike for its originality and enjoyment.

The Sophomores Take a Second Look at the Horizon

Sandy Vasquez, President

To what is the atmosphere of the moon similar? Let's hope it isn't so eerie as the atmosphere created by the class of 1966 at their Halloween Dance. Enjoyed by many, the dance was the first major event of their sophomore year, the second being the reception of their long-awaited class rings.

As the Freshmen First Look to the Horizon

The first space satellite opened a new world of exploration, learning, and discovery for the United States. On a smaller scale the incoming freshmen found a new world of knowledge and activities in Avenal High School. When they sponsored the Valentine Dance, the class of 1967 realized that co-operation, responsibility, and teamwork are of the essence if a successful project is to be completed. We hope that the freshman class has enjoyed and profited by its first year in high school, for it is, indeed, a new phase of adjustment that is a building block upon which the other experiences of their lives will rest.

'64 Student Council Harmonizes Its Leadership with Kennedy Philosophy of Re-Emphasis on Americanism

The 1964 Student Council, guided by its President, Ray Moore, began the year with high ideals and creative goals. Among these, as one of their many projects, the council brightened up the library with some attractive plants. Another creative accomplishment was that of the novel Christmas Dance. The council dared to break long tradition and provide live entertainment with a band. One more outstanding achievement by the council was their participation to the Fall Leadership Day of District 15 in Exeter. The council benefited greatly by this experience. Another goal for the council was the repairing of the pool table in the Recreation Center. Even though the goal was somewhat expensive, the council consented its use in the past and looked to its future use to pay for itself. The council again looked to the future with foundation plans for a student center. To really break tradition and help create something entirely new for Avenal High, the Council supported the creation of the American Field Service program for an exchange student from abroad.

All in all, the council had accomplished what it set out to do - to institute high ideals and creative goals.

Space-Age LaNeva Staff for '64 Is Touched by Production Complexities

Similar to the components of an electronic computer are the members of the La Neva staff. The editor is the careful, vital programmer who feeds the necessary data into the computer, which processes it and produces a finished report -- the 1964 LaNeva. Typists, advertisers, artists, writers, page designers, photographers, publisher, editor, and advisors have contributed their time and effort to make this annual a reality. We are proud to have had published this unique yearbook, which contains all the memories of this past, eventful school year, because we know that it will be looked upon with pride and joyful reminiscence in the years to come.

An extremely successful banquet was the highlight of G.A.A. this year. The hard work that went into the banquet illustrates the sportsmanship and co-operation that the girls have displayed throughout the year.

Along with the banquet, a swim party, fun-night, Christmas party, and Mother-Daughter Tea all contributed in making 1964 a very successful and active year.

Quill and Scroll

International Honorary Society for High School Journalists

If you were to look through a 1963 edition of the La Neva, you would note that it marks the granting of Avenal High's own W. H. Reilly Chapter of Quill & Scroll. Avenal High School is indeed proud of its association with this international society of select high school journalists. For those staff members who qualify, membership is strictly an honor. Recommendation for Quill & Scroll is our school's way of saying "thank you for all your efforts beyond your classes and studies to write this year's diary of school activity."

To all of our new members, welcome; and may initiation to Quill & Scroll be the beginning of your acquiring a real appreciation for the written word!

"You're awfully sweet, Fred."

"Did the doorbell ring, Mrs. Ritter?"

"Why, Mr. Spindler--you bold thing, you!"

Practice makes perfect; yet this proverb seems to have been disproved by the amateur theatre group, directed by the bossy and dominating Mrs. Pampinelli, that "practices" in the first act of "Torch Bearers." Mrs. Ritter, who is positive that her starring role will give her fame on Broadway; Mrs. Fell, the sweet li'l ol' lady with a man-trappin mind; Mr. Spindler, the brainless and incompetent helper of Mrs. Pampinelli; Mr. Hossefrosse, the forgetful and suave actor, Miss McCrickett, the young, pert, and delightful actress; teen-aged Teddy Spearing, interested in jazz and gals, and Mr. Twiller, the happy-go-lucky and stumbling actor all put forth their best efforts to produce a play worthy of an Oscar. All during the first scene humor and more than a touch of reality are combined, climaxed when Mr. Ritter, aghast at seeing his wife's "acting", falls in a dead faint from the top of the piano.

Finally the big night arrives, and the second act shows the zany anxieties of a cast: lost props, late actors, falling scenery, loss of memory, lighting problems, and a curtain that won't open for curtain calls. While Mr. Twiller and Mrs. Ritter get stuck in a doorway and Teddy faints, Mrs. Pampinelli continues to direct the play in her usual flighty and imperious manner.

In the third act the play being over, the cast adjourns to a victory party, however Mrs. Ritter returns home to discover her husband in a rage! After seeing his wife's acting, Mr. Ritter is sure that it will be impossible for him to hold his head high in public. As Mrs. Ritter bursts into tears, Mrs. Fell and Mrs. Pampinelli arrive and thoroughly upbraid Mr. Ritter for his lack of appreciation of culture and talent. While the argument continues, Higgins answers the phone, and as a result of the conversation Mrs. Ritter is offered a movie contract! The suspense mounts. Is it love or money???? Love wins, and Mrs. Ritter decides to keep her home intact and stay with her husband rather than become a star.....

And they live happily ever after!

"I tell you, Mr. Hossefrosse, he ruined the scene!"

"Someday you'll learn that the bird's wing gester is the only gesture!"

THE MOUSE THAT

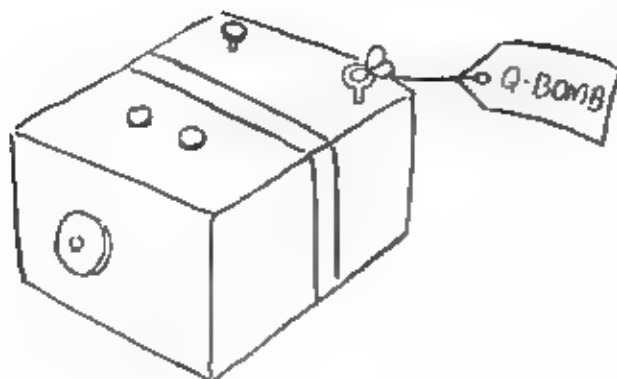

This year the Senior class presented the hit comedy, "The Mouse That Roared."

The exceptionally humorous satire tells of the strife of a very tiny duchy named Grand Fenwick. The minute country's export market was stolen when an imitation of their precious wine, Pinot Grand Fenwick, was suddenly being manufactured in the United States.

To meet the financial demands, Grand Fenwick decided to declare war on the United States. The true motive of the plan, which was to lose the war and receive financial aid from the generous United States, is known only by the Duchess Gloriana, Count Mountjoy, and Mr. Benter, however.

The army is finally organized and a simple minded backwoodsman known as Tully Bascom leads the forces. They invade New York City in broad daylight with bows and arrows! By some ridiculous fluke, they capture the Q-bomb which puts the United States at their mercy.

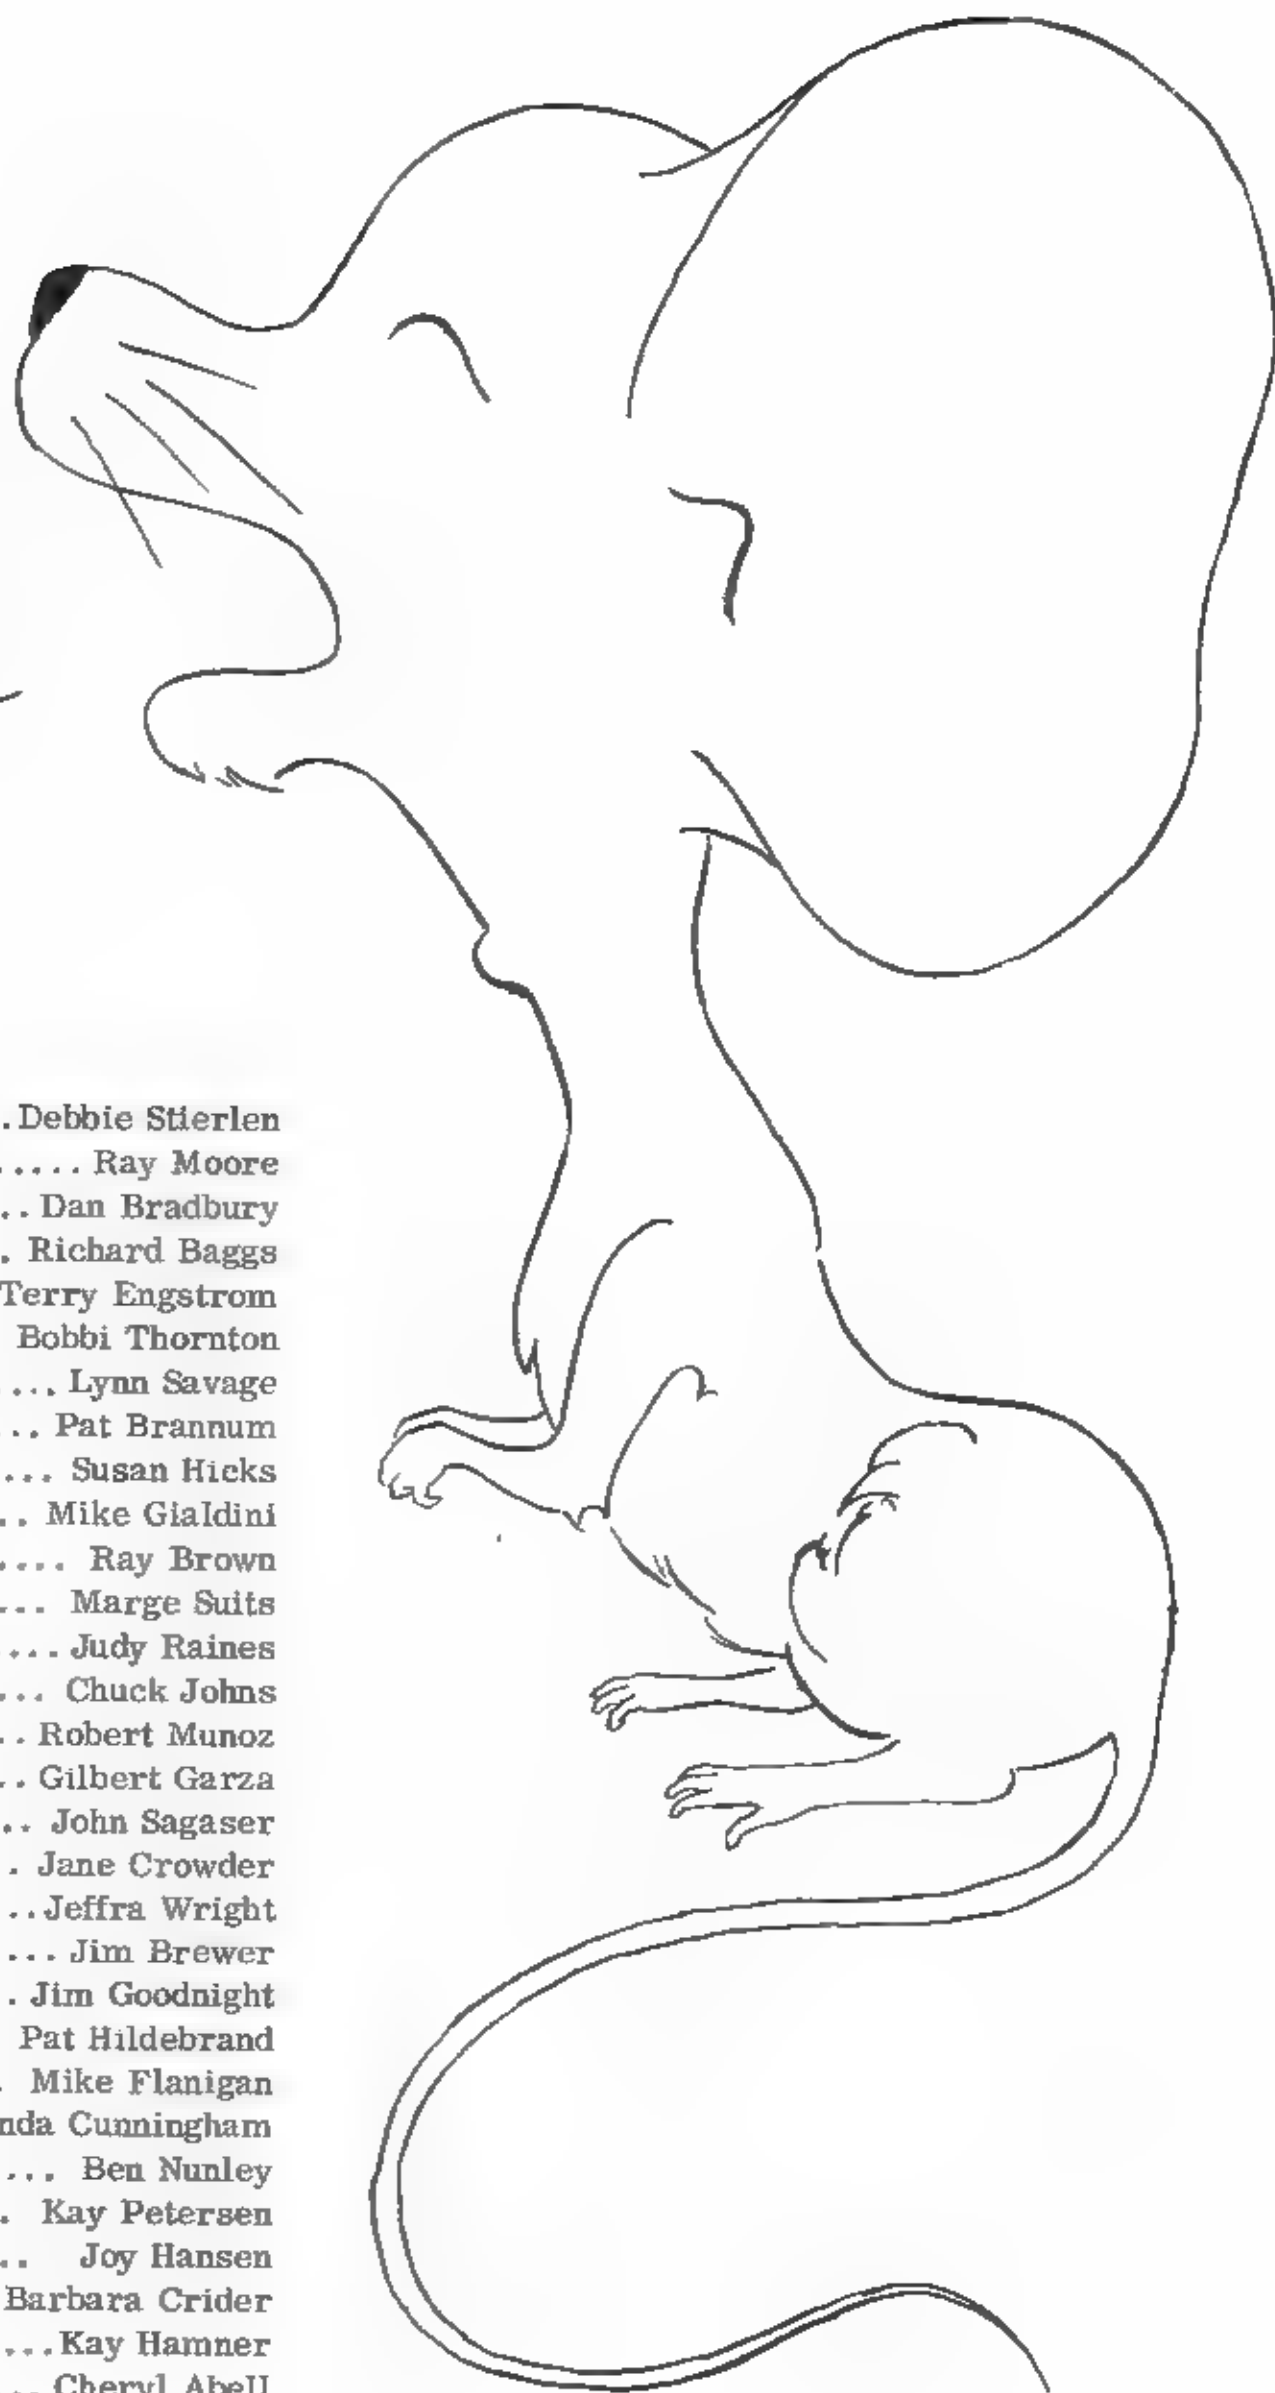

However, the play does end happily. The United States is forced to pay an annual tribute to Gloriana of twelve dozen pomogranites. The microscopic country, five miles long by three miles wide, tells the rest of the world no war and lives happily ever after as the little mouse with the power of a mighty lion.
